technical means: earpieces, phones, etc. Maybe at some stage these tools were good, and brought the expected result. But at the moment, to pass the exam, they are useless. In many universities, stubs are placed during exams, and You simply can't use them.

take a chocolate bar with you for the exam. Before you go into the office, eat a little. Chocolate stimulates the brain, forcing you to concentrate on your tasks.

Good tips

while answering a question that you don't know the exact answer to, smoothly switch to another one that you are more focused on. Only that this transition was unobtrusive. Although a competent teacher will certainly notice this substitution, but usually they do not find fault with it. "At least the student knows something.". By the way, you can "switch" to the latest news on the subject under discussion, which you certainly did not forget to look at before the exam.

if there are Cribs:

sit on the first desks. As a rule, teachers keep track of the "last" desks, because there is an opinion that "scammers" sit at them. However, the advice – do not be impudent, and you can light up on the first Desk. In addition, when answering the question, do not say the lecture material word for word, it will immediately be clear that you have written off.

And finally, luck is an important point when passing the exam. Don't miss the right moment to use it. There are many cases of such successful delivery. For example, in my memory, a student worked part-time in a taxi at night. Instead of studying for the exam, I went to work as a driver. And as if on purpose, among the passengers, he caught a teacher who should take the exam the next day. The teacher was not sober and on fun. The student drove him home, escorted him to his apartment, and handed him over to his wife in one piece. For this, I received the promise of an excellent exam, which happened the next day. It is good that the teacher was honest and fulfilled his promise!

Or another case. I came to pass the exam in the morning. As you know, the group is given about 3-5 hours to pass the exam. Someone comes to the very beginning to go first, someone closer to the end to have time at home to read something else. And I decided (though I did not learn anything) - come what may, I will give up.

The teacher came after a holiday in high spirits. And all five students who were waiting for him near the audience, automatically delivered excellent, even without handing out tickets. The rest had to pass...

Here are some tips on how to pass the exam. If someone else has any ideas, write in the comments, let the others use it.
